Machine foundation overview

Vibration isolation of foundations Foundations are for making a machine rigid or for gathering several machine components onto a common load-bearing ground. Only by using vibration isolation and the resulting decoupling from the building ground can the area be reliably protected against disturbing vibrations.

more ➤